ONE MANSION FIVE MURDERS

This story takes place in the 1930s in Ghost city Texas.

Many rumours and stories are told about this city and its dark past because of one house which has been on sale for many years. One of the rumours is that the city was built on an Indian cemetery.

One day, a family decided to move in there. The owner was James. A few weeks later, everyone in the house started noticing strange phenomena. They heard noises or saw people at night although they were supposed to be alone in the house. The family was afraid of all the weird things going on in this house.

In spite of the scary nights they had in the mansion, none of the family members gave up. They remained there.

A mean ghost haunted the house. It was the ghost of a serial killer. The family saw, in the middle of the night, a white shape moving around. They knew the ghost's name was Juan because it echoed all around when they saw him floating in the air.

So Juan committed his first murder the night of the big sister's birthday, he strangled her while she was sleeping and she died two minutes later.

Juan was the ghost of the first owner coming back from the world of spirits. That owner killed many Indians that lived there to build his house.

James did not want his family to live in his house any longer and decided to kill the ghosts. He wondered how he could do this.

But he didn't have time to do that. He died while cleaning the roof of the mansion a few days after he finished repairing it. He fell and died instantly.

Was it an accident? Did someone push him? We'll never know.

The week after, all the other siblings were in mourning but one of them was standing next to an open window and then Juan pushed him through it, he committed his third murder.

The house was empty, waiting for its next owner....
